TACOMA

— THE —

Western Terminus OF THE Northern Pacific R. R.

IF YOU WANT

A Home or an Investment

IN THE NORTHWEST

GO TO TACOMA.

BECAUSE :

1. Tacoma is the Western terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad, the greatest of the transcontinental roads.

2. Tacoma is at the head of navigation on Puget Sound, the "Mediterranean of America," whose Port of Entry enters and clears more shipping than any Port of Entry in the United States, except New York and San Francisco.

3. Tacoma will be the shipping port for all the wheat raised in Eastern Washington, and for much of that raised in Oregon.

4. Tacoma ships more lumber and coal than any other port on Puget Sound, and has tributary to it vast deposits of coal—the best in the Pacific Northwest—and is in the heart of the finest timber in the world.

5. Tacoma is destined, from its location, to be the great distributing point for Eastern Washington, Idaho, and a great part of Oregon.

6. Tacoma has never been "boomed," but has steadily grown since 1880, when the population (by census) was 720, to the present time, when the population is about 9,000.

7. Tacoma's climate is excellent, the average temperature in winter being 41 degrees above zero, and in summer about 65 degrees. The summer climate is mild, dry and salubrious; the rainfall is in winter, which is quite as healthful as the summer.

J. M. ACADEMY OF THE HOLY NAMES.

FOR YOUNG LADIES.
SEATTLE, WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

This Academy, which is under the direction of the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary, is pleasantly located in one of the most picturesque parts of the city. Besides, it commands an extensive view, and receives the full benefit of the pure air of Elliott Bay. The claims of its situation to beauty and to the promotion of health cannot be surpassed. The building is new, large and commodious.

The object of this institution is to afford young ladies an opportunity of acquiring a thorough English education, based on the principles of religion, and to cultivate their taste for refinement; hence, strict attention to their moral and intellectual training, and to every thing that will fit them for the sphere of life which each is to occupy in the future, will be reckoned as sacred duties.

At all hours, the pupils are under the guardian care and government of their teachers, and the most devoted attention will be paid to all that can ensure their physical well-being and comfort.

Pupils of every religious denomination will be equally received, and all interference with their religious convictions carefully avoided. Good order, however, requires that all should conform to the general regulations of the institution.

All letters, to and from the pupils, will be inspected by the Superiores.

The scholastic year commences toward the end of August, and terminates about the middle of June. It is divided into four quarters of ten weeks each.

For further particulars apply at the Academy.

Also, office at the Store of Isaac Pinous, Tacoma, W. T.

The Advantages of this Press over all Others are :

1. Three Bales of Hay or Hops can be pressed at one time.
2. By taking out the partitions the same box can be used to press single bales to any weight desired.
3. The press is portable and can be taken down from the gin-house and carried to the field for hay pressing, or used for hides, rags or other bales, as desired.
4. The simple construction of the Press enables any common carpenter or mechanic to repair it without carrying it to a machine shop.

It has been in practical use for three years, and has given universal satisfaction.

TESTIMONIALS.

TEXARKANA, May 22, 1884.

Mr. S. DONALDSON:

I have worked your press for four months, and I found that one man could work the press himself, and press from 500 to 600 pounds in a bale all the time. I find the press to work all right, without any trouble, and you will find it to be as fine a press as was ever made in the State.

Yours Truly,

PREFACE.

To meet the long felt want of a volume that should accurately reflect the business and professional interests of "The Sound Country," the publishers undertook the publishing of a Puget Sound Directory. It is earnestly hoped on their part that the expectation of a thorough and comprehensive work has been fully met. That their efforts have been heartily endorsed is attested by the liberal patronage given, for which they extend their sincere thanks, with the assurance that no legitimate expense has been spared to secure correct information.

PUGET SOUND.

The name Puget Sound is constantly widening in its meaning. As originally given by Vancouver, a century ago, it included only the inlets south of Point Defiance and Gig Harbor, no one of which is forty miles from the place of beginning. Waters north of Point Defiance were called Hood's Canal, Admiralty Inlet, Possession Sound, Saratoga Passage, Rosario Strait, Washington Sound, Gulf of Georgia and the Strait of Juan de Fuca. As the settlements extended north the name Puget Sound was carried along, until twenty years ago, it included all waters south of Port Townsend, which was then looked upon as the beginning of Puget Sound, the first harbor from the ocean. The meaning of the name was extended a little later, however, by act of Congress, so as to include all American waters in Washington Territory south of the Canadian boundary. By this act Fuca Strait and the Gulf of Georgia were partially taken in, and the name further increased in popular favor. Since then it has extended north into Canada, until now it is generally made to cover all the southern inland waters of the Province of British Columbia. Should British Columbia become a portion of the United States, there can be no reasonable doubt that Puget Sound would then be made to cover all the inland waters from the 47th to the 60th parallels of latitude, being a length of one thousand two hundred miles, and equalling, ere long, in commercial importance, many of the great seas of the old world. The voyage, navigation and climate are practically the same along the coast, the passenger and seafaring man experiencing little change and difficulty in going from one end to the other of all this vast body of water, which, in the number of its inlets, harbors, islands, rivers, grandeur and beauty of scenery, is unequalled elsewhere on the globe.

History and Description.

The first report of Puget Sound came from Juan de Fuca, a Greek pilot in the employ of the Spanish Viceroy of Mexico. He came north with a small vessel on an exploring expedition in 1592. He got into the strait separating Vancouver Island from Washington Territory, and for a time he supposed it was the long looked for "Northwest Passage," by which European navigators hoped to reach India by a shorter route. Discovering his mistake, Fuca took possession of the waters and the wilderness in the name of the King of Spain, and returned to Mexico. In 1792, Vancouver, a captain of the British navy, while on a voyage of discovery, entered and explored the labyrinth of waters now known as Puget Sound, to which he gave the name of one of his lieutenants; named Vancouver Island after himself, named Mounts Baker, Rainier, St. Helens and Hood after Lords of the British Admiralty, and gave other names to every island, inlet and passage he discovered, names which, with very few exceptions, have been continued to the present day. The development of the fur trade and the whale fishery soon after brought an occasional vessel to Puget Sound, including Hudson Bay Company ships, a half century ago, and the United States exploring expedition of Capt. Charles Wilkes, in 1841.

In the narrowest sense of the term, Puget Sound has an east side length of 150 miles, a west side length of 90 miles and a north length (from Cape Flattery to Semishmo Bay) of 160 miles. Fuca Strait is 12 miles wide and 80 long, without a shoal, bar or rock to impede its navigation. At its head the strait is lost in the islands, bays and passage ways of the east, north and south. The ramification of these waters may be imagined when it is stated that their coast line measures 1,594 miles. The northern waters of the Sound include an archipelago (De Haro) of islands of great beauty, while in the middle Sound are to be found four islands (Bainbridge, Vashon, Camano and Whidby) from ten to thirty miles in length each. The upper Sound also contains a number of islands, but smaller. The islands of the Sound are one of its chief attractions. Their scenery, is generally the best, their soil is as good as that of similar lands on the main, while their climate is thought to be more affected by the Japanese current, by which the whole North Pacific Coast is blessed, and for that reason preferable to the climate only a few miles further inland. However this may be the islanders are certainly content with their situation, they live long and happily, and they show no disposition to change places with their neighbors of other parts of the country. The inlets and bays outnumber the islands, numerous as are the latter. They are to be found reaching into the land everywhere, usually from one to ten miles, with widths varying from five miles down to a few hundred yards. Hood's Canal, the chief division of the waters of Puget Sound, has a length of sixty miles and an average width of four. The principal bays are those of Port Discovery, Port Townsend, Seattle, Tacoma, Port Orchard, Olympia, Whatcom and Semishmoo, on all of which there is considerable population and traffic. The waters of the Sound vary from five fathoms to one hundred and fifty, the deepest being in the middle Sound, fifteen miles from Seattle. There are no reefs or other obstructions, and no navigation is easier, plainer or safer. No vessel has ever been lost within its waters in consequence of storms; marine insurance is the lowest on the coast, and seafaring men speak in terms of the highest praise of Puget Sound. The smallest prudence only is required to avoid danger, the Sound being a succession of harbors from end to end, or one grand harbor as it may not improperly be termed, with holding ground in all its parts.

By a still further extension of the term Puget Sound is now also made to mean the country surrounding it, the two thousand square miles of water and the twelve thousand miles of land partially surrounding it being generally termed Puget Sound. As used in this sketch Puget Sound may be understood to mean only that part of both land and waters within the jurisdiction of Washington Territory.

Rivers, Lakes and Mountains.

The rivers of Puget Sound are the Nisqually, Puyallup, White, Duwamish, Samamish, Snoqualmie, Snohomish, Steilagumish, Skagit, Samish and Nooksack. Of these the principal is the Skagit, of one hundred and twenty miles length, navigable for sixty miles to light draft steamers, and having its source in British Columbia. White, Snoqualmie and Nooksack are next to the Skagit, steamboats ascending them from thirty to forty miles. The others can be used for the purposes of steam navigation from five to fifteen miles each. The DesChutes, Green, Cedar, Skykomish and Sauk are streams from fifteen to forty miles long, but are not navigable. These rivers all have their source in the Cascade Mountains, all flow through valleys of great fertility, and all are easily accessible either by steamboat or rail, or both.

The lakes of the Sound country are many in number. The largest is Washington, twenty-four miles long and five miles wide three miles from the bay at Seattle; Samamish and Whatcom are lakes ten miles long and two miles wide. Smaller lakes, ranging from those of a few acres surface up to five miles in length, are to be found everywhere, frequently two or three in sight from the same point. These lakes are the objects of no small degree of pride to residents of the country about. Upon Washington and Samamish, which are connected by Samamish river, several steamboats ply, a great deal of farming and lumbering being done thereon, with the certain prospect of several coal mines being opened within a year, and the speedy building of a number of towns, the beginnings of which have already been made. Tacoma and Seattle get the greater part of their water supply from lakes back of them.

Puget Sound is flanked on the east by the Cascade Mountains, and on the west by the Coast or Olympic Mountains. The latter are from ten to thirty miles from tide water, and are from four thousand to eight thousand feet high; the former are from thirty to seventy miles distant and they range from five thousand to fourteen thousand four hundred and forty-four feet, the latter being the altitude of Rainier, the highest mountain in the United States outside of Alaska. These two ranges can be seen simultaneously from hundreds of points, and they afford views of the utmost grandeur. Taken from a high point on an island in mid-Sound, with the waters and lands about, valleys opening here and there, towns to be seen and moving steamers and rail ships, and the view cannot be excelled anywhere in the world. From the decks of the steamers running from the upper Sound to ports in British Columbia are to be obtained, on a single trip many magnificent views, the soul-stirring, ennobling delight of which cannot be expressed with paper and ink.

Valleys.

For many years, until quite recently in fact, it was supposed there was little agricultural land in the Puget Sound basin, and the development of the country was undoubtedly retarded by the prevalence of this idea. That it was erroneous is now known. The valleys are numerous, extensive, extremely fertile, and already enormously productive. Fifteen years ago there were only fifty voters in Puyallup valley, and not a single town. Now there are one thousand voters and five towns, one of the three having six hundred inhabitants and two four hundred each. The value of the agricultural produce of Puyallup valley is greater now than that of the entire Puget Sound country in 1872. White river valley is in as forward a condition of development as Puyallup, and so also are Stuck and Duwamish valleys. These four valleys comprise the country between the towns of Tacoma and Seattle, a ride through which by rail is a passage for forty miles between hop fields, meadows, orchards and gardens, affording an enormous traffic and sustaining a large population of industrious, thrifty farmers. The largest valley is the Skagit, but it is of more recent development. Nooksack valley is year by year coming into greater notice. In it and the Skagit are half a dozen growing towns, the principal being Ferndale in the former and Mount Vernon in the latter. Steilaguamish valley is a great producer, Stanwood being its chief town. The Snohomish is a short stream, made by the confluence of Skykimish and Snoqualmie rivers, the valleys of which are as good as the best, the leading town being Snohomish City, of about eight hundred inhabitants. Samish, Nisqually, Skokomish and Chimicum are valleys of less area and note, but of no less fertility; besides which are a score of others coming with the passing years into greater productiveness and fame. The valleys are generally more lightly timbered than the islands and highlands close by. The timber is also more varied, including fir, spruce, hemlock, maple, cottonwood, alder, ash, etc., all marketable and in demand. The soil is deep and enduring. It is said that wells a hundred feet deep have failed to find soil less rich than that at the surface. Wonderful stories are told of the yield of farm produce, as of 4000 pounds hops to the acre, 100 bushels oats, 700 bushels potatoes, 6 tons hay, and 40 tons beets. No region is more thoroughly adapted to the prosecution of the business of dairying. Fruit also does well. The valleys are all accessible now by wagon roads and railroads, by steamboats and wagon roads, or by wagon, boat and rail all three. In this manner a great advance has been made of late years. Communication is not only easy, but it is rapid, frequent and cheap, giving farmers corresponding benefits in getting to and from market. The climate of the valleys is a little different from that of the open Sound, being milder and a few degrees warmer in summer, and colder but less windy in winter.

Climate.

Except summer the seasons are not clearly defined. Spring glides gradually and imperceptibly into summer, and summer in turn into fall, fall into winter, and winter into spring. During three of the past twelve winters there was neither snow nor ice, the severest cold being insufficient to produce more than light frosts. The coldest weather of the twelve years referred to was that of February, 1887, when the thermometer got down to zero, and during which month the ground was covered with snow a longer period than at any other time since the "hard winter of 1861-2." The disagreeable weather usually begins with the rains of November, and continues until April. During these five months about twenty-five inches of rain will fall, and about fifteen inches during the remaining seven months, more or less rain falling every month of the year, a drouth never having been recorded in the history of the country. Ninety degrees is the hottest weather of summer and fifty degrees is the average temperature of the year.

Pioneer Settlements.

The first settlement of the Puget Sound country was by the Hudson Bay Company, who established a trading post at Fort Nisqually in 1838. The first American settlers came in 1843, and located at Tumwater, then called Newmarket. Olympia was established as a town in 1849, Steilacoom and Seattle in 1852, and Port Townsend and Whatcom in 1853. In the decade following 1860 Port Angeles, LaConner, Coupeville, Snohomish and Tacoma were established, and in the ten years following 1870 Puyallup, Sumner, Renton, Stanwood, Mount Vernon, and other lesser towns. Saw-mill and coal-mine towns have been built at various points since 1853, but as they are owned wholly by the mill and mine companies, and not to the extent of a single town lot by their residents, they are omitted from the list of pioneer towns above given. The earlier growth of these towns was necessarily slow, but during the past ten years has been quite rapid. Tacoma and Seattle have done more than other towns; their development being represented by the following figures: Tacoma—population 1870, 73; 1880, 1,423; 1883, 3,180; 1885, 6,936; 1887 (estimated), 8,400. Seattle—population 1870, 1,107; 1880, 3,533; 1883, 6,645; 1885, 9,687; 1887 (estimated), 12,000. That these two towns will become large cities—the St. Paul and Minneapolis of the State of Washington—there is but little reason to doubt, while it is not impossible that large cities may also arise at other points in this great and promising region.

Resources.

The resources chiefly developed are lumber, coal, the fisheries and agriculture. Western Washington is heavily timbered. Taking into account land already cleared, open prairies, burns, waterways, etc., it is safe to estimate the timber now standing upon lands adjacent to Puget Sound, and available for the purposes of commerce, at 100,000,000,000 feet. The out of timber during the year prior to June 1, 1887, was 60,000,000 feet, or considerably greater than in any previous year. Of this vast quantity 300,000,000 feet went to California ports, 100,000,000 feet to Mexico, South America, Australia, Asia and the islands of the Pacific, and the remainder, 200,000,000 feet, was consumed at home. The value of this product of Puget Sound averaged $12 per thousand feet, and aggregated $7,200,000. The Canadian and Northern Pacific Railroads are opening eastern markets to Pacific Coast lumbermen, and a trade of no small magnitude has already been obtained.

The coal mines of Puget Sound basin have to this time yielded 3,000,000 tons. Tacoma and Seattle are at present the only ports of shipment. During the year ending May 31, 1887, upwards of 500,000 tons were placed on board ship at these towns—each sending about the same quantity—for sale in the cities of Oregon and California. This coal is worth $8 per ton on board ship at the ports named.

Three thousand acres are planted in hops. These also are chiefly in the vicinity of Tacoma and Seattle, which are the places of shipment for the entire product. The Pacific Coast excels the world by three to one in the production of hops. That is, the yield of California, Oregon and Washington averages 1,800 pounds per acre, while that of the Eastern States and Europe does not exceed 600 pounds per acre. The crop of 1887 will probably be close upon 5,000,000 pounds. The price fluctuates amazingly—in the past five years having been as high as $1.10 a pound and as low as eight cents. The average for a long term of years past has been fully 25 cents, and at this rate the three hundred growers may expect to get for their crop this year not less than $1,250,000.

Next to hops as an article of export in the way of farm produce is oats, the surplus product of which amounts to about 5,000 tons, valued at $125,000. The oats are grown chiefly on the tide lands at the mouths of Steilaguamish and Skagit rivers, the crop being wholly handled at LaConner, Utsalady and Seattle, the outside market being San Francisco, where Puget Sound oats bring top prices.

Potatoes, wool, hides, fruit, butter, cheese, eggs, poultry, pigs, sheep, horses and cattle are exported in small quantities each, but in the aggregate to a very large value. San Francisco, British Columbia and the Eastern States take these articles.

The seal fishery employs for four months a score of schooners and five hundred white men and Indians, the catch being from twelve thousand to fifteen thousand seals, the skins of which are worth at least $100,000. The salmon fishery supports each season several large and many smaller establishments, the value of their combined product being $100,000. Other fisheries include the oyster, herring, dogfish, halibut, cod, smelt, sturgeon, clams, crabs, etc., all of which find sale at home or in the Portland market.

Iron is produced from bog ore at Irondale, on Port Town. 1 bay, to the extent of about four thousand tons a year, worth about $100,000.

Lime is found in many places, but is got out alone on the islands of the Archipelago de Haro and in Puyallup valley. The Portland, Western Washington, British Columbia and Alaska trades are supplied from these sources, to the extent of $150,000 a year.

Building stone is found in many places, but the finest comes from the Chukanut quarry, in Whatcom county.

Ship building is carried on quite extensively, from one yard alone (that of the Hall Brothers, of Port Blakely) sixty ocean going vessels having been sent forth, of the average coal carrying capacity of seven hundred tons. The ship building industry, including repairs of steamers, etc., keeps employed four hundred mechanics the year around, and their work represents $800,000.

Railroads.

Five railroads are in course of construction. The chief one of these is the Northern Pacific, which has recently completed its Cascade branch. Thus this company owns an unbroken line of two thousand miles of railway, reaching from Ashland and Duluth on Lake Superior, to Tacoma, on Puget Sound, with six hundred miles of tributary road.

The Seattle, Lake Shore and Eastern Company has forty-three miles under construction, to be finished September 15th. The company declares its intention to keep on building all this year and next, and to have seventy miles of completed road before the 1st of January, 1888.

The Seattle and West Coast Railway Company has thirteen miles of road now building. This section carries it to Snohomish City. The intention of this company is to build to a point of junction with the Canadian Pacific Railway at or near Fort Hope, B. C., a distance of one hundred and fifty miles.

The Satsop Company is building steadily on to Gray's Harbor, from the town of Shelton, in Mason county. It has seven miles of road in operation, seven miles more graded and tied, and the rails are now due from England for its further equipment. This road completed will be thirty-eight miles long, standard gauge.

The Port Blakely Mill Company are building a road parallel to that of the Satsop, though about ten miles to the east. It begins at Kamilochie, in Mason county, and is headed for the Chehalis river and Gray's Harbor. Ten miles of road are now in operation, and ten miles will be built this year. When completed its length will be about forty miles.

A logging railroad is building in the Samish region of Whatcom county, by Dudley Blanchard and associates, and another from Hood's Canal in Mason county, by the Puget Mill Company. Two short logging railways are already in operation near Olympia, and one near Snohomish.

In addition to the railroads before mentioned, the Olympia and Chehalis Valley Company owns a road fifteen miles long from Olympia to Tenino, the Northern Pacific a road one hundred and forty-five miles long from Tacoma to Portland, the Oregon and Transcontinental (now virtually the Union Pacific) a line 80 miles long from Seattle to Puyallup, and the Columbia and Puget Sound Company lines to Newcastle, Renton and Franklin, of forty-four miles length.

Railroads projected are extensions of the Columbia and Puget Sound, twenty-five miles, to the common point on the Northern Pacific's Cascade division, and to Snoqualmie. Also a road for the Bellingham Bay Railway and Navigation Company from Seattle to Whatcom, New Westminster and Vancouver, about one hundred and twenty miles.

Puget Sound Sawmills.

The sawmills of the Sound are the biggest in the world, and they are justly included among the leading industrial establishments of the United States. The Tacoma and Port Blakely mills have each cut over 800,000 feet of boards in ten hours. The Blakely Company owns its entire townsite, including hotel, store, dwellings, mill, wharves, etc., wherein a thousand people live and do business. It also owns two large and powerful tug boats, seven ships, 80,000 acres of timber land, and a standard gauge railroad ten miles long, which it is now extending thirty miles further. Its cut of lumber last year was 54,000,000 feet; this year it will be not less than 60,000,000 feet. The Puget Mill Company owns three towns—Port Ludlow, Port Gamble and Utsalady—and four sawmills. It owns five tug boats, twelve ships and 200,000 acres of timber land. The cut of its mills last year was 90,000,000 feet of lumber. In all its operations the Puget Mill Company employs 1,500 men, the Blakely Company 1,200, and the Tacoma Company 1,000. The other Sound mills, though extensive concerns, are considerably less, in capacity, property and value, than the three above named.

Steamers and Foreign Trade.

In 1876, thirty-six steamboats were officially recorded in the books of the District of Puget Sound, their aggregate tonnage being 4,663. Ten years later there were ninety-five steamers so recorded, of 12,747 tons measurement.

Exports to foreign countries amounted during the years below named as stated:

1880	$ 445,087
1881	529,887
1882	1,460,725
1883	1,601,147
1884	1,659,188
1885	1,916,000
1886	2,072,111

Trade of the Future.

The export trade of Puget Sound is already of enormous bulk—1,500,000 tons per annum. It consists, however, of cheap articles, as lumber and coal, but in the aggregate the value is great—fully $10,000,000. It amounts to but little, though, compared with what it will be a few years hence. Then wheat and flour, wool, iron and a thousand manufactured articles will be exported. The lumber and coal trades will be doubled and trebled; scores of vessels will go north for seals, cod fish and whales; ships will be arriving continually from Japan and China, freighted with silks and tea; the raw sugar of the Pacific islands will be refined here, and maybe there will also be a heavy production of beet sugar, for which no other region has greater adaptation. A dozen or twenty ships will arrive and depart daily, while hundreds of trains will come from the north, east and south every day, and as many depart in the same directions. There is no further west than this, and here must stop that vast multitude who since the days of the Mayflower have ever been seeking homes and opportunities in the new country beyond. The possibilities and probabilities of Puget Sound are great beyond calculation.

PRINCIPAL CITIES.

SEATTLE.

This city is one of the oldest in the Territory, and is the largest. It dates back to 1852, though its marked growth has been since 1870. The census of that year gave it eleven hundred inhabitants, which was increased to fifteen hundred in 1875, thirty-five hundred in 1880, sixty-six hundred in 1883, and ninety-seven hundred in 1885. The town has spread out and filled up considerably during the past two years, and the number of its inhabitants is much greater than at the taking of the census of 1885. Twelve thousand inhabitants is a conservative estimate at this writing.

Seattle is on a capacious bay, forming a part of the middle Sound. Back of the town is Lake Washington, twenty miles long, and in the northern part Lake Union, three miles long. On a high plateau between the bay and these lakes, and on the slopes leading down to both lakes and bay Seattle is built. The lower part of the city is comparatively level, made lands and the former beach, to the extent of forty or fifty acres having been availed of in the construction of mills, warehouses, hotels and buildings for general business purposes. There is indefinite room for extension in this direction as the needs of the place demand, hundreds of acres of tide flats in the southern end being available for the purpose. The position of the town insures easy drainage, and consequent health to the population, affords magnificent views from ten thousand building sites and gives the whole place a charm to beholders almost irresistible.

Seattle is the seat of King County, and its courts are Municipal, Probate, Territorial and United States. The Chief Justice of the Territorial Supreme Court, the U. S. Attorney for the Territory, and the U. S. Marshal for the Territory all have residences and offices in the city. Seattle is also the seat of the U. S. Land Office for the Puget Sound District—the Land District of largest business in Washington Territory. The U. S. Inspectors of Hulls and Boilers have headquarters here, while there is a branch of the Custom House with Deputy Collector and two Inspectors. The postoffice has so increased in importance and business as to cause a recent order by the Postmaster-General making it a free delivery office, with four carriers. The Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies make Seattle their chief place of business for the Puget Sound district, while the Puget Sound Telegraph Company is controlled here, and here does its business. The Canadian Pacific Railroad Company has its Puget Sound office in Seattle, with branch offices in the other towns, and it runs a steamer regularly—the Eliza Anderson—to its terminus at Vancouver. The steamer Evangel also runs to the same place, and the steamers of the Pacific Coast Company giving Seattle five steamers a week to and from that promising and rising town. The Northern Pacific Company also keeps an office here, and the same may be said of many other railroad, steamship and like companies.

The church interests of Seattle include the denominations and buildings of the Roman Catholics, Episcopalians, Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodist Episcopalians, Methodist Protestants, Free Methodists, Christians and Lutherans—the Methodist Episcopalians being represented by three church buildings, the Congregationalists by three, the Baptists by three, and the Episcopalians by two. The schools include the University of the Territory, in a more flourishing condition than ever before, grandly situated on a ten-acre square in the center of the town; a Catholic school for young ladies in a beautiful building that cost $50,000; and five public schools, two of them in buildings that cost $26,000 and $35,000 respectively. Besides there are a number of private schools of primary character. In the city is an orphan's home and two hospitals. The former belongs to and is sustained by the Ladies' Relief Society, and does a most excellent work, caring for fifteen or twenty small children, finding them homes, etc. One of the hospitals belongs to the Episcopal Church, and was built and is kept by the local membership; it is new and has cost $9,000. The Catholic hospital is an immense affair, costing $80,000, requiring thirty sisters and attendants, and having accommodations for two hundred patients.

The business of the city is general. As a seaport, its commerce with California, Oregon, British Columbia and Alaska amounts to about 30,000 tons a month, two-thirds of which is represented by a single article—coal. Lumber, agricultural produce, fish, local manufactures, merchandise, etc., account for the remainder. The Puget Sound National Bank is doing business with a paid-up capital of $50,000; the Merchants' National, $100,000; the First National, $150,000; and Dexter Horton & Co., $200,000. The deposits in these banks aggregate over $1,200,000. In the city are a number of wholesale houses, with heavy traffic in all the neighboring counties. Forty steamers are engaged in the trade of Seattle. The newspapers are represented by the Post-Intelligencer (daily, weekly and Sunday); The Press (daily and weekly); The Times (daily and weekly); the Real Estate Record (daily); Die Tribune (a German weekly); the Sunday Star (weekly); the Mechanical World (weekly); and the Industrial Gazette (monthly). The city is lit with gas and electricity, and has two lines of street railway. Its telephone exchange has one hundred and forty subscribers. The affairs of the city are in the hands of a mayor, a council of nine, a clerk, a treasurer, a health officer, an assessor, an engineer, a chief of police and ten officers, two magistrates, and a fire department of two hundred and forty members. The property of the city includes a six-acre park, two brick and one wooden buildings and lots, two steam and one hand fire engines, one hook and ladder outfit, six hose carts, electrical alarms, hydrants, etc.

The principal streets of Seattle have been graded and planked, while no town of its size has a greater length of good sidewalks. The buildings are of modern architecture, and many of them very fine. The Opera House seats thirteen hundred people, and is larger and finer than any like structure west of St. Paul and north of San Francisco. Seattle is the extreme north-western terminus of the railroad system of the United States. In the county are one hundred and eighty miles of railroad, belonging to the Northern Pacific, Oregon and Transcontinental, Columbia and Puget Sound, Seattle and West Coast, and Seattle, Lake Shore and Eastern companies, with forty miles more to be put under construction before the summer is gone. The railroads run along the water front, with offices, depots, wharves, side-tracks and shops.

By the superiority of her natural position, and by the determined efforts of her enterprising citizens, Seattle has become the center or turning point of the Puget Sound country. No wagon road from north to south passes her, no railroad passes her, no steamboat line. From whatever direction he may go, the passenger is of necessity carried to Seattle, and not by her. Of no other point in this region can this be said. Her busy steamers are daily reaching for the traffic of the growing country of the upper Sound, along the Strait of Fuca, down the east side of the Sound, across into British Columbia, and into Alaska beyond. Her merchants or their agents are already laying hold of the trade of Eastern Washington, made accessible by the completion of the Cascade branch of the Northern Pacific Railway. No town on this upper coast is doing better at present, nor done better in the past, or gives greater promise for the future than Seattle.

TACOMA.

This thriving young city is the recognized western terminus of the Northern Pacific railroad and has remarkable facilities and opportunities for becoming a large and prosperous commercial and railroad center. It is situated on the southerly shores of Commencement Bay, an arm of Puget Sound, which is capable of floating the largest fleet of ocean vessels and sound steamers. The city is situated on a high bluff which rises rapidly from the bay to a distance of a quarter to half a mile and then extends back on a level and beautiful plateau. The city is the county seat of Pierce county, 143 miles north of Portland, 1,911 miles by rail from St. Paul, the eastern terminus of the Northern Pacific railroad. It is 37 miles by the sound to Seattle, 94 to Port Townsend and 127 to Victoria, B. C. The town was settled in 1873. There are nineteen church organizations in Tacoma, the most of which have church edifices, including Baptist, Catholic, Christian, Congregational, Episcopal, Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian and Unitarian; also, Scandinavian churches of the Baptist, Congregational, Lutheran and Methodist denominations. The public schools are all first class and well attended. There is also an excellent young ladies' school for higher culture, known as the Annie Wright Seminary, and a well equipped young men and boys' school called the Washington College.

These two institutions were endowed in the sum of $50,000 each by the liberality of Hon. C. B. Wright, of Philadelphia, who has in so many ways manifested the great interest he feels in the prosperity of this city. The city contains three banks, the Tacoma National, the Merchants' National and the Pacific National, all in prosperous condition. The press is represented by the Ledger (Independent, daily and weekly), the News (Independent, daily and weekly), Die Wacht am Sunde—the Watch on the Sound—(Independent German, weekly).

Large deposits of coal near this city are a great source of wealth, the annual output being upwards of 200,000 tons. Manufacturing is but in its infancy, but yet it has extensive railroad shops and other terminal works, with furniture factories, sash, door and blind factories, foundries, machine shops, saw and planing mills and many other important manufacturing industries. There are excellent water works, gas works, fire department, telephone communication, and all other attributes of a good-sized city. The shipments are coal, lumber, hops and general farm produce.

The year 1887 marks the beginning of an important era in the history of Tacoma. The completion of the Cascade division of the Northern Pacific means the removal of every influence that could heretofore impede its growth, and the opening up for its merchants of an extensive trade east of the Cascade Mountains. Inseparably linked with the Inland Empire, it will advance with the growth and development of that territory. Whatever trade relations may have been formed heretofore with other ports, it is certain that Puget Sound can always offer superior inducements to the grain shippers of Eastern Washington and Western Idaho. Already the Northern Pacific is tapping the rich grain districts south of the Columbia and Snake rivers, and from what this powerful corporation has done for Duluth, its eastern terminus, it is easy to see what its policy will be towards its western terminus, Tacoma. Few have forecasted the possibilities of grain production east of the Cascades. The most competent authority estimates the wheat surplus of that region ten years hence at 100,000,000 bushels.

More and finer buildings, both residences and business blocks, are in course of erection this year than ever before. The streets and avenues, on which many thousand dollars have been expended, are justly a source of pride to its citizens, as well as surprise to visitors.

The famous Tacoma is one of the finest hotels in all its appointments to be found on the Pacific coast. Numerous tourists find the great glaciers and perpetual snow fields of Mount Tacoma a source of intense interest, and there are annually large numbers who come here to take in these wonderful Alpine views. Population upwards of 10,000. Telegraph, Western Union and Pacific Postal. Express, Northern Pacific. Mail daily. There are two postoffices, viz: Tacoma (Lamon E. Sampson Postmaster) and Old Tacoma (Samuel C. Howes Postmaster.) (For information concerning city government, societies, churches, miscellaneous organizations, etc., see pages 872 to 888.)

OLYMPIA.

The capital of the Territory and the judicial seat of Thurston county, is pleasantly situated on Budd's inlet, 123½ miles northwest of Portland, Or. It is on the O. & C. V. R. R., 20½ miles northwest of Tenino, where it connects with the P. div. of the N. P. R. R. It contains churches of the Methodist, Catholic, Presbyterian, Congregational and Episcopal denominations, four good schools, employing eleven teachers and having an attendance roll of 400, Territorial and Good Templars' libraries, containing 8,000 and 2,000 volumes respectively, gas and water works, a bank, the First National (capital $75,000), a public hall, capable of seating 450, saw and shingle mills, a number of handsome and well-stocked special and general stores, and all the other attributes of a prosperous city.

There is a daily line of steamers to Tacoma and Seattle, also to Shelton, Arcadia and Oakland. Stages to Montesano ($3) and Oakland (daily except Tuesday), fare $1.

Few places present more attractions as a summer resort than Olympia. Here we can find all the comforts of larger places, with an air of quiet unknown to the larger and more fashionable watering places. The calm waters of the Sound, fringed with dense forests, with the peaks of the Olympic range in the background, and Mount Rainier to the east, form a picture at sunset which, once seen, can never be forgotten.

The streets are broad and well shaded, and are studded with elegant public buildings and private residences, prominent among the former being the Territorial Capitol, the City Hall, the halls of the Good Templars, Odd Fellows and Masonic societies, and Providence Academy. The press is represented by the Partisan (weekly, Republican), issued Saturday, and the Washington Standard (Democratic, weekly), the New Transcript, issued Saturday, and the Northwest Teacher, an educational monthly. An efficient fire department renders the city safe from any serious conflagration. The shipments comprise wool, hops, fish, lumber, hop poles and hoops, and may be made by boat or rail. Olympia is growing steadily, and its future prospects are most encouraging. Tel., W. U. Exp., N. P. Population, 2,800. Mail, daily. Arthur D. Glover, postmaster.

PORT TOWNSEND.

Beautifully located in the extreme northeastern portion of Jefferson county, on Puget Sound, is a prosperous incorporated city, 214 miles north of Portland, and 82 northwest of Tacoma. Settled in 1853, it is now the judicial seat of Jefferson County, and contains Episcopal, Catholic, Presbyterian and Methodist Churches, a good school employing five teachers and having an attendance roll of 200, steam saw and planing mills, an opera house capable of seating 1,000, a bank (the First National, capital $50,000), a foundry and a number of special and general stores. Port Townsend, two miles distant, military headquarters for Puget Sound. Port Townsend is the principal port of entry for the Sound, the collector of Customs and several consuls residing here. The U. S. Marine Hospital is also located here. The secret and benevolent orders are well represented. Steamers from Tacoma daily except Sunday. Steamers from and for San Francisco also call here regularly. The press is ably represented by the Puget Sound Argus (daily and weekly, Ind.), and the Call (weekly, Ind.). Lumber is the only shipment. Tel., Puget Sound Co. Exp., N P Co. Population, 2,000. Mail, daily. George G. McNamara, Postmaster.

HARBOR CHARGES.

W. M. Murphy, Harbor Master. There are no specified rates regulated by law for pilotage and towage to Port Townsend and the Straits. Tugs make their own prices, which vary, making any schedule unreliable. The following rates are charged for landing freight on city wharves and slips: On merchandise and produce, 50 cents per ton; on brick, 25 cents per thousand; on stone, 20 cents per ton; on lumber, 50 cents per thousand feet; on horses, mules and horned cattle, 25 cents each; on sheep, hogs and other live stock, 5 cents each. In cases not provided for above, such rates and charges as the harbor master shall deem reasonable. It is unlawful to land freight on city wharves, inclines, etc., without first procuring permission from the harbor master.

STREET DIRECTORY.

Commencing at the docks, the streets running nearly north and south, parallel with the water front, are named and numbered as follows: Water, West, Front, Second, Third, etc., to Thirty-first street.

Commencing at Yesler's Dock, foot of Mill street, going east, you pass at right angles, Water, West, Front and all the streets numbered from Second up, on the left or north side; on the right or south side, at right angles with Mills street, are Water, West, Commercial, Second, Third, etc., to Thirty-first.

Commencing on Mill street, at the Occidental Hotel, Front street runs northwesterly and parallel with the water front. On the right or east side, you pass James, Cherry, Columbia, Marion, Madison, Spring, Seneca, University, Union, Pike, Pine, Stewart, Virginia, Lenora, Blanchard, Bell, Battery, Wall, Vine, Cedar, Clay, Lake Avenue, Eagle and Grant, where Front intersects Depot street in North Seattle. Depot street runs east and west, and forms a dividing line between the streets last named and the following streets on the left or north side of Depot street, beginning at the water front, which are named as follows: Banner, Temperance, Kentucky, Warren, Poplar, Oak, Ash, Box, Willow, Birch, Lombard, Farm, Dexter, Vine, Orion, Rollin, Bismarck, Moltke, Lake, Brook, Lincoln, Howard, Albert, Pontius, Mary, Cedar and Fir.

Commencing on Mill street, at the Occidental Hotel, and going east, you pass on the left or north side, the following streets running northeasterly: Jefferson, Terrace, Alder and Cedar. Here Mill street intersects Broadway. From this point Broadway takes a northerly course, and on the right or east side you pass the following streets: Lake, Prince, Eaton, Crawford, Barclay, Jessie, Willow, Edes, Knights, Filbert, Division, Choat, Gould, Hayes, Bancroft and Hawthorne.

The streets south of Mill street to Twelfth run due east from the water front, and are named as follows: Washington, Main, Jackson, Weller, Lane, Dearborn, Charles, Plummer, Norman, Judkins, Addition, Town, Seattle, Woodstock, Brunswick, Pine, Plum, Hill, Walker, College, Bay View Avenue, Lander, McClellan, Forrest Avenue, Stevens, Winthrop, Hanford, Horton, Hinds, Lyons, Orleans, Court, Yealer and Market.

The numbering of business blocks is as follows: Commencing on Mill and Front streets, the numbers begin with 600; on Second street with 500; on Third street with 400; and so on out to Sixth street. On Front street the numbers run from 600 up. The numbering on Commercial street begins on Mill street with 100; Washington 200; Jackson 300, and so on. Every 20 feet in the business portion of the city is entitled to a number.

THEO. E. PEISER'S ART STUDIO,

817 Second St., SEATTLE, W. T.

First Class Work Guaranteed, no matter how bad the weather.

CHILDREN A SPECIALTY.

Remember this, if you are wise, sir,
That Photographs of every size, sir,
To be had at the Studio of Theo. Peiser—
Are elegant
And permanent.

They look at you as if to say,
"I'm a real daisy! Ain't I gay?
Peiser does this thing every day—
In his establishment
Most competent.

He flatters not in foolish haste,
But does his work with cautious taste,
That's why his products are so chaste—
And elegant.

So says the speechless photograph,
With eyes that seem to fairly laugh,
A volume in a paragraph—
Intelligent
And confident.

His way of dealing, too, is straight,
Honorable, genial and considerate—
Virtues all might emulate
Without disparagement
Or detriment.

Posing, lighting and standing, too,
Retouching, tone of richest hue,
And burnish, all so bright and new—
Magnificent Ornament.

This is no advertising lie,
Composed merely to magnify.
The work itself will justify
The compliment.

Every Negative Preserved.

Welcome to all, both high and low,
Peiser's every-day work will show
The truth of this, if you'll bestow
Your patronage Benevolent.

Besides portraiture, he has views—
To a very few this will be news.
Washington Territory scenery he pursues
With keenest scent.

Snoqualmie Falls, grand and sublime
With perilous trail which you must climb,
The Hop fields, too, in picking time—
And Siwash diffident.

The logging towns, with whistle at mill
Calling hands to ship-yard, woods and mill,

There to employ their time with axe and saw and drill,
Or other implement.

Of Seattle and its environ,
Its noble ranges to admire on—
And grand old Rainier to inspire on—
A monument
Of sentiment.

In fact, all things worth photographing:
Now, to conclude this paragraphing,
Lest more of it should set you laughing—
Irreverent.

Eight hundred and seventeen, Second street.

Theo. E. Peiser's Art Studio, neat,
His work, view and portrait, can't be beat
On the continent.

CAUTION.

There are two galleries on Second street. Be sure you read the sign before you enter, so as not to make any mistake and get into another gallery.
Peiser's gallery is the only one with the title "Art Studio." Please bear this in mind.

SNOHOMISH. The judicial seat of Snohomish county, is pleasantly located on the river of the same name, 48 miles by water northeast of Seattle, the banking point. Settled in 1868, it now contains a water power sawmill and furniture factory, Congregational and Methodist churches, a steam sawmill, a public school and numerous well stocked special and general stores. A system of water works has recently been established. The shipments comprise lumber, grain, hay, hops and hides. A weekly newspaper, the Eye, is published. The advent of the Seattle and West Coast Railway, now being constructed to this point, will give an extraordinary impetus to the growth of this place. Ship goods direct. Boat tri-weekly to Seattle; fare, $1.50. Population, 600. Tel., W. U. and Pacific Postal. Mail, tri-weekly. John B. Noll, postmaster.

Young S C, engineer.

WHATCOM. An incorporated city and the judicial seat of the county of the same name, is pleasantly located on Bellingham Bay, 100 miles north of Seattle, with which communication by steamer is had four times a week. Settled in 1852, it now contains a bank, Congregational, Baptist, Methodist and Episcopal churches, good schools, a saw mill and numerous well-stocked general and special stores. An excellent weekly newspaper, the Whatcom Reveille, (Rep.), is published. Lumber and general farm produce form the shipments. The certainty of rail communication being established soon, with Seattle on the one hand and the Canadian Pacific system on the other, means a bright future for this city. Stage to Nooksack; fare, $1. Population of vicinity, 800. Telegraph, Western Union and Pacific Postal. Philip M. Isensee, postmaster.

CLALLAM COUNTY.

Clallam stretches along the Strait of Fuca eighty miles and down the Pacific Ocean shore twenty miles more. Its area is 2050 square miles. It is backed by the Coast Mountains, which furnish the water for numberless small rivers or streams flowing north through the county into Fuca Strait. Along these streams are little valleys, in which the population find profitable occupation tilling the productive soil. General farming is carried on, including the rearing of stock, cultivation of fruit and vegetables and the production of hay and butter. Clallam County people are much interested in the deep water fisheries, having many vessels, large and small,

ISLAND COUNTY.

This county consists of Camano and Whidby Islands. Camano has an area of 80,000 acres and Whidby of 115,000. On Camano is Utsalady, owned by the Puget Mill Company, the mill at which place cuts 90,000 feet of lumber daily. Utsalady is also the port of shipment for about one-half the oats sent from Puget Sound to San Francisco. Coupeville, the county seat, is on Whidby Island, and is a very attractive town of 300 inhabitants. Oak Harbor is another and smaller town on the same island. A great deal of timber has been cut on these two islands in the past, which have been pretty well denuded. Farms have taken the place of the forest, and the soil is generally being very good. Whidby Island has come to be regarded as the garden of Puget Sound. Population, 1885, 982; assessed value of property, 1886, $407,827.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

County Auditor—Joseph B. Libbey, Coupeville; Treasurer, Judge of Probate and County Surveyor—J. E. Monroe, Coupeville; Sheriff and County Assessor—Joseph C. Power; County School Superintendent—Miss L. E. Crockett, Coupeville.

JEFFERSON COUNTY.

This county is the only one extending from the inland waters of the Sound to the Pacific ocean. Its area is about 1500 square miles. Population—1880, 7725; 1885, 2645; 1887 (estimated), 3500. Taxable wealth—1880, $569,128; 1886, $945,674. Port Townsend, the county seat, is built upon one of the finest bays of Puget Sound. It is a steadily growing town, with bright prospects for the future. It is the port of entry to the customs district of Puget Sound; the U. S. Marine Hospital is located there; a one-company military post, and the headquarters of the revenue cutter and lighthouse interests. In Jefferson county are three large saw-mills, Port Ludlow, Port Hadlock and Port Discovery, cutting 80,000,000 feet of lumber per annum. The Irondale Iron Works are also in the county, with an output of 4000 tons pig iron a year. The Chimacum and Quillente valleys are among the most fertile in the country, but their production is yet limited to the supply of the home demand.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

County Auditor—O. A. Dyer, Port Townsend; County Sheriff and Assessor—John F. Sheehan, Port Townsend; County Treasurer—Wm. Dodd, Port Townsend; Probate Judge—W. H. Whittlesey, Port Townsend; Clerk—Josiah S Wyckoff, Port Townsend.

KING COUNTY.

King is one of the oldest counties in the territory, having been established by act of the Oregon legislature passed Dec. 22d, 1852, and it has long been in many respects the leading county. Its extent is 2040 square miles. Within its borders are found lands of the greatest fertility, vast quantities of timber, coal, iron and other minerals inexhaustible. Its productions are enormous, giving freight to hundreds of ships annually. King County is blessed with easy means of communication. It fronts 60 miles upon the Sound; it has 150 miles of inland navigable waters, and it has, controlled by five different companies, 180 miles of railroad. The onward progress of the county has been steady, and promises to continue so indefinitely in the future. The Snoqualmie Falls are the highest in the territory, there being a single drop of 270 feet. Lake Washington and Lake Samamish are the largest lakes in the Puget Sound country. There are also more rivers than in any other county. The chief towns are Seattle, Renton and Kent, with lesser towns in all directions. There are large mining towns at the Newcastle, Cedar Mountains, Black Diamond and Franklin coal mines. The coal product of the past twelve months was 250,000 tons, and the timber cut 60,000,000 feet. The hop crop of 1887 will approximate 2,000,000 pounds. More steamers have been built at Seattle than at all other Puget Sound points combined, while the repairing of steamers is almost wholly within the hands of her mechanics. A great deal of manufacturing is done at Seattle, for which sale is found all over the Sound, British Columbia and Alaska. Agricultural products are varied. Large quantities of potatoes, fruits, stock, etc., are exported. The fisheries are visibly centering their operations in Seattle, including those engaged in the seal fishery, salmon canning and barreling, halibut and smaller fish. In Seattle are located the offices of the Chief Justice, the U. S. Marshal, and the U. S. Inspectors of Halls and Boilers. It is also the seat of the Territorial University. Population of King County, 1860, 802; 1870, 2174; 1880, 6841; 1885, 16,160; 1887, (estimated) over 20,000. Assessed value of property, 1880, $2,129,835; 1886, $7,551,765. Railroad property was taxed in 1880, but not in 1888, when there was several million dollars' worth in King County.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

KITSAP COUNTY.

Area, 540 square miles. County seat, Port Madison. Population—1880, 2006; 1885, 2638. Assessable wealth 1886, $1,118,520. Kitsap for thirty years was noted as the great lumber cutting and dealing county of the Sound. It had no other settlements, no other industries, and no other population than that engaged in and dependent upon the lumber trade. Of late, however, the conditions have been changing. Four or five hundred people have gone upon the fertile lands about Port Orchard Bay, where several small towns have been started, and where the center of the county, as regards population and interest, promises soon to be. The sawmills of Kitsap county have cut 180,000,000 feet of lumber during the past year.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor—Nelson McCallum, Port Madison; Treasurer—P. J. Primrose, Port Madison; Sheriff and Assessor—Joseph Comstock, Port Madison; Judge of Probate—Nathan Bucklin, Port Madison; School Superintendent—Mrs. L. M. Ordway, Port Madison; Coroner—Wm. P. Morgan, Port Madison; County Surveyor—Charles Armstrong, Port Gamble; County Commissioner—E. Ames, Port Gamble; Pros. Attorney—J. T. Ronald, Seattle.

MASON COUNTY.

The southern end of Puget Sound is divided between Mason and Thurston counties, Mason on the west and Thurston on the east, and Mason having the lion's share. Its area is about 1000 square miles. Until lately it has been off the lines of travel and has developed very slowly. During the past two years, and occasioned by the building of two lines of railroad, a great change has been wrought, and no other county in the Territory has grown proportionately so fast as Mason. There are now under construction four lines of railroad (all standard gauge), viz.: Hood's Canal and Port Orchard R. R. Co. (Clifton P. O.), Puget Sound and Gray's Harbor R. R. Co. (Kamilechie P. O.), Satsop R. R. Co. (terminus Shelton), and The Washington Mill and Transportation Co. (Portland P. O.). The completion of these lines, originally projected for lumbering purposes, will not only place this county among the first of the Territory, but will become an important element in transportation between the Sound and the Pacific ocean. Its population in 1880 numbered 600; in 1885, 809; in 1887 it is estimated at 1500. Its taxable wealth went up from $226,565 in 1880, to $543,197 in 1885. Lumbering is the principal resource of the population, the cut of sawlogs being about 800,000 feet per diem. Shelton will be the county seat.

PIERCE COUNTY.

Pierce has an area of 1800 square miles. Like all the east side counties it reaches from the summit of the Cascade Mountains to the waters of the Sound, including also four islands off the town of Steilacoom. Lumber, coal and hops are the principal productions, including 70,000,000 feet of the former, 250,000 tons of coal, and 2,250,000 pounds of hops. Besides these lime, wool, general farm stuff and sundry manufactured goods are produced. Shipbuilding is also carried on, the steamers Mogul, Clara Brown and Skagit Chief having been turned out of the local yards during the past year. The Northern Pacific company operates two lines—one from Tacoma to Portland, and the other from Tacoma to the East over the Cascade Mountains. The U. S. Territorial Penitentiary is located on McNeil Island, and the Territorial Hospital for the Insane at Steilacoom; both being large and costly structures with complete surroundings. Tacoma, Puyallup, Sumner and Steilacoom are the chief towns. Coal mines have been opened at Carbonado, South Prairie and Wilkeson, and large properties there accumulated by the corporations owning them. The fertile lands of the Puyallup Valley are admirably adapted to the production of hops. This product has already a national reputation and commands the highest price both in local and Eastern markets. And this industry, though already of large proportions, is only in its infancy. Tacoma, the county seat and western terminus of the Northern Pacific railroad system, is the second town in population and wealth in the Territory. It is handsomely laid out and well built. Its streets and avenues, on which many thousand dollars have been expended, compare favorably with those of eastern cities of many times the population. Pierce County has increased in population from 3339 in 1880 to 11,565 in 1885, and to about 14,000 in 1887. Assessed value of property, 1880, $1,678,202; 1886, $5,693,908.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

SAN JUAN COUNTY.

The Archipelago de Haro of 280 square miles area, forms the county of San Juan. The principal islands of this group are San Juan, Orcas and Lopez, besides which are Stewart, Decatur, Blakely and others. These islands are noted for their beauty and for their grandeur of scenery. The rainfall upon them is less than upon that of the main land adjacent. The soil is excellent, and fine fruits and vegetables are grown. The islands are peculiarly adapted to sheep raising. The leading industry is the production of lime, of which 40,000 barrels are produced annually. Population, 1885, 1053; assessed value of property 1886, $267,110. Friday Harbor is the county seat.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor—John H. Bowman; Treasurer—C. C. Reed; Sheriff—John Kelly; Judge of Probate—J. E. Tucker; Superintendent of Schools—E. O. Gillett; County Assessor—John Kelley; County Commissioners—John W. Gray, James Nelson, P. E. Peterson.

SKAGIT COUNTY.

This is one of the new counties of the Territory. It is rich in soil, in timber, and in minerals. Coal and iron in great quantity were discovered fifteen years ago, but have remained undeveloped to this time. Gold has also been found. Oats are the principal crop of the farmers, though much else is produced as well. Oats average as high as 75 bushels to the acre, 100 bushels being frequently obtained. LaConner and Mount Vernon are the principal towns, each having about 400 inhabitants. The Skagit river flows through this county, and where it empties into the Sound has formed a delta of the greatest richness. The Samish river is also in Skagit county, with characteristics of soil and timber similar to those of the Skagit. Fully 100,000,000 feet of logs are out in Skagit county annually. Population 1885, 2316. Assessed valuation of property, $1,195,380.

ern Pacific Railroad runs through the county from north to south, with stations at Yelm, Tenino and Seato. Coal has been found in immense quantities, but so far mines have not been opened. Getting out saw logs has been the chief industry for a long time past, though considerable general farming is carried on. Tumwater is a manufacturing town of note; a great water power there giving the people superior facilities in their line. Olympia is the county seat; also the capital of the Territory. It is a well built handsome town of 2,500 inhabitants.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor—John P. Tweed, Olympia; Treasurer—O. B. Mann, Olympia; Sheriff—Wm. Billings, Olympia; Probate Judge—Milo A. Root, Olympia; School Superintendent—Mrs Parnelia O. Hale, East Olympia; Coroner—Aaron Hartsock, Olympia; Assessor—Samuel James, Grand Mound; Surveyor—George T. Oline, Black River; Commissioners—Thomas Prather, Olympia, George B. Capen, Yelm, Austin E. Young, Little Rock; Prosecuting Attorney—J. M. Robinson.

VICTORIA.

The capital and commercial metropolis of British Columbia is beautifully located on Vancouver Island, 262 miles north of Tacoma, between which place, Seattle and Port Townsend the steamers of the O. R. & N. Co. run daily. The completion of the Canadian Pacific railway and the establishment of a line of steamers between the terminus of this line and Hong Kong give Victoria transportation facilities enjoyed by no other Pacific Coast city except San Francisco. The press is ably represented by daily and weekly newspapers, the former taking full dispatches. The hotels of Victoria are such as any city should take pride in, the tables at the Clarence or Driard not being surpassed on the coast. This fact, together with the advantages of a perfect climate, excellent roads and beautiful drives, makes Victoria a favorite summer resort. Steamers weekly to San Francisco. The population, which is steadily increasing, is upwards of 12,000. Express, Northern Pacific, Wells, Fargo & Co. and Dominion. Telegraph, W. U. and Pacific Postal.
